|---------|-----------------------------------|

Dear Ms. Kleinheinz,

I am a new student of Master in Management and Technology program. My matriculation number is 1234567.

I have problems with registration for courses. In some cases TUMonline shows that the maximum capacity is reached. Does it mean I cannot follow this course? Furthermore, I am not sure which courses should I choose and I want to discuss with you my course schedule. I would like to make an appointment with you. Could you please inform me when can I drop by?

Thank you for your time and patience.

Kind regards,
Jon Snow
(Matr. No. 1234567)

1.4 TUM E-Mail Address

Please check your TUM mailbox regularly – we will notify you about important information and events in this way. If you want the emails to be forwarded to your private email address, please follow this guide, which explains in detail how to successfully complete the mailing process.

1.4 German Etiquette

Shaking hands

Germans shake hands in formal/professional situations both when arriving and when departing. It is common for a person who is joining a group to shake hands with every single individual.

Punctuality & Accuracy

Germans can be very punctual. Be 5 to 10 minutes early for important appointments and be sure to call the people you are meeting if you really cannot make it in time. Furthermore, promises are made to be kept!

Du and Sie

Du is an informal and Sie a formal way of addressing to somebody. Please remember to use Sie in your communication with professors and administration. It is polite to address everyone by their family name and Sie.

In general: Du + first name, Sie + family name

1.4 Principles of Good Practice for Students

The aim of examinations, project works, thesis and any other study achievements is to determine and certify the acquisition of competences. Therefore, for all achievements the examinations regulations apply. Each examination and achievement must be made independent and using only permitted tools. To avoid plagiarism, you need to pay attention to a complete indication of references and correct citation.

- ❖ You need to mark every citation and reference (complete and comprehensible).
- ❖ Literal citations must be marked with quotation marks and the reference has to be indicated directly before or after the citation
- ❖ Non-literal citations and paraphrases (e.g. explanations, summary in own words) have to be marked, too, and the reference has to be indicated before or after the passage/section

Want to learn more? The TUM Library has an extensive offer (workshops, e-courses and webinars) for students who want to refine their skills or gain new ones (citation, literature research etc,)

1.4 Principles of Good Practice for Students

- ❖ The use of AI is only acceptable within the limitations each professor sets for the individual course or module. This also includes your final thesis.
- ❖ Use of external images, data, tables, source texts, etc. requires special care, even if they were found in Internet:
  - The authorship of the source have to be indicated complete and comprehensible
  - For the use of images author's explicit permission can be necessary

1.4 Principles of Good Practice for Students

- ❖ At the end of your written work, please list all references in alphabetical order in form of a bibliography (§18 Abs. 9 APSO)
- ❖ Ideas, outlines etc. from other sources than your written work must also be marked and the reference has to be indicated
- ❖ If possible, quote only scientific sources and try to look for primary sources
- Please note, that any attempt of deception or plagiarism can have consequences like failure to pass the examination or deregistration. Examinations and achievement failed due to deception can be retaken only once. Furthermore, it is also a copyright infringement and this can lead to legal consequences.

More details can be found here: <https://www.ub.tum.de/en/citing>

2. Housing in Heilbronn

2. Accommodation

Heilbronn consists of nine districts (Biberach, Böckingen, Heilbronn, etc.) while the Bildungscampus is located in the district Heilbronn, which is the center of the nine districts. Most students prefer to live in student halls or shared apartments.

Applying to more than one dormitory / shared flat is advised since the demand is high, and rejection is likely. For more information, please check here: Our Services for Students | TUM Campus Heilbronn
Please contact the Service Point team at servicepoint@chn.tum.de if you need more information on finding accommodation.
